Environment & Society Portal

Multimedia Library Collection: Environment and History (journal)

"Empire Forestry and American Environmentalism"

Barton, Gregory A.

Barton, Gregory A. "Empire Forestry and American Environmentalism." Environment and History 6, no. 2 (June, 2000): 187–203. doi:10.3197/096734000129342271 . This article examines the influence of empire forestry on the environmental movement in the United States. It particularly examines the British Indian forestry exemplar, and traces its influence on environmental thinking in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century. Three central American foresters, Franklin B. Hough, Charles Sargent and Gifford Pinchot, are examined to illustrate the link between empire forestry and the massive forest reservations that mark the beginning of modern environmental movement in the United States. All rights reserved. © 2000 The White Horse Press

Download:
PDF: https://www.environmentandsociety.org/sites/default/files/key_docs/barton-6-2.pdf

Related links:

- Environment and History at The White Horse Press
  http://www.erica.demon.co.uk/EH.html

Websites linked in this text:

- http://dx.doi.org/10.3197/096734000129342271

Environment and History (journal) Collection, Multimedia Library, Environment & Society Portal
"Empire Forestry and American Environmentalism"
Source URL: http://www.environmentandsociety.org/node/3045
Print date: 25 November 2026 07:35:14