Multimedia Library Collection: Environmental Film Profiles (videos)

¡Vivan las Antipodas!

Kossakovsky, Victor. ¡Vivan las Antipodas! Leipzig: Heino Deckert/ma.ja.de filmproduktion, 2011. DCP/HD, 105 min. https://youtu.be/BTunEnD6Q0k.

> With this film Victor Kossakovsky grants himself a childhood wish. Haven't we all asked ourselves as children where we would come out if we dug a tunnel right through the centre of the earth? Haven't we all wondered at some point what was happening just at this moment beneath our very feet at the other side of the planet? In this film those reveries turn into reality. In breathtaking images and a stunning montage we go on a trip to the world's rare inhabited land-to-land antipodes. We discover the wonders and contradictions of nature and people around the globe. With unprecedented camera movements and exhilarating new perspectives our conventional view of the world is challenged. On the evocative title follows a revolutionary film, that gives three cheers to our planet and its people in all their antagonisms and commonalities: ¡Vivan las Antipodas! (Source: Producer's Website)

© 2011 farbfilm verleih GmbH. Trailer used with permission.

About the Environmental Film Profiles collection

Related links:

- ma.ja.de filmproduktion
  http://en.majade.de/films/vivan-las-antipodas/

Websites linked in this text:

- http://en.majade.de/films/vivan-las-antipodas/
- https://www.environmentandsociety.org/multimedia/collection/environmental-films-project