Environment & Society Portal

Multimedia Library Collection: Periodicals

"Eco(il)logical Knowledge: On Different Ways of Relating with the Known"

Baptista, João Afonso

Baptista, João Afonso. "Eco(il)logical Knowledge: On Different Ways of Relating with the Known." Environmental Humanities 10, no. 2 (2018): 397-420. https://doi.org/10.1215/22011919-7156805 .

In this article, I narrate an ethnographic storyline that involves forest inhabitants, local politicians, development professionals, and scientific researchers in both representational and nonrepresentational worlds of knowing. I discuss how and why, in Angola, making forest knowledge through relations of distance to the forests is crucial for attaining institutional legitimacy over the forests. This way of acquiring authority and influence is championed by a broad epistemological tendency to address only the absent, which is then made present by accredited representers. Yet this technique disempowers local forest dwellers in their everyday territories and disallows the capacity that the ecological knowns have to reveal themselves. Knowing Angolan forests through absence and distance is not just a potent contemporary form of knowledge that qualifies as a way of ruling the forests, but is also integral to widespread (neo)colonial processes of distinction and separation: the knower and the known, the representer and the represented, the "cosmopolitan intellectual" and the "rustic bestial" Other. Finally, I discuss different forms of ecological knowledge in light of ethical stances toward knowing, relationality, and, ultimately, being. (Text from author's abstract)

© João Afonso Baptista 2018. Environmental Humanities is available online only and is published under a Creative Commons license (CC BY-NC-ND 3.0).

Download:
PDF: https://www.environmentandsociety.org/sites/default/files/key_docs/397baptista.pdf

Related links:

- Environmental Humanities website http://environmentalhumanities.org/

Periodicals Collection, Multimedia Library, Environment & Society Portal
"Eco(il)logical Knowledge: On Different Ways of Relating with the Known"
Source URL: http://www.environmentandsociety.org/node/8553
Print date: 27 November 2026 06:15:59

- Environmental Humanities 10, no. 2
  https://read.dukeupress.edu/environmental-humanities/issue/10/2

Websites linked in this text:

- https://read.dukeupress.edu/environmental-humanities/article/10/2/397/136687/Eco-il-logical-KnowledgeOn-Different-Ways-of

Periodicals Collection, Multimedia Library, Environment & Society Portal
"Eco(il)logical Knowledge: On Different Ways of Relating with the Known"
Source URL: http://www.environmentandsociety.org/node/8553
Print date: 27 November 2026 06:15:59