Environment & Society Portal

Multimedia Library Collection: Environment and History (journal)

"The Environmental Crisis and the Tasks of History in Latin America"

Herrera, Guillermo Castro

Herrera, Guillermo Castro. "The Environmental Crisis and the Tasks of History in Latin America." Environment and History 3, no. 1 (Feb., 1997): 1–18. doi:10.3197/096734097779555971 . The study of history in a sense that can be called 'environmental' is a discipline yet to be created in Latin America. This has become an obstacle that must be overcome if we are to understand better the serious social and environmental deterioration of the region. To this end, Latin American historians must engage in dialogue simultaneously with their own societies and with environmental historians from the North Atlantic world. Collaboration between our societies - so different in so many ways - is essential if we want to survive the global environmental problems created by the world system of which we are both part. All rights reserved. © 1997 The White Horse Press

Download:

PDF: https://www.environmentandsociety.org/sites/default/files/key_docs/herrera-3-1.pdf

Related links:

- Environment and History at The White Horse Press
  http://www.erica.demon.co.uk/EH.html

Websites linked in this text:

- http://dx.doi.org/10.3197/096734097779555971

Environment and History (journal) Collection, Multimedia Library, Environment & Society Portal
"The Environmental Crisis and the Tasks of History in Latin America"
Source URL: http://www.environmentandsociety.org/node/2909
Print date: 30 October 2026 12:52:05