

Multimedia Library Collection: Books & Profiles

Conservation Song: A History of Peasant-State Relations and the Environment in Malawi, 1860–2000

Mulwafu, Wapulumuka Oliver

Conservation Song. Cover.

All rights reserved. © 2011 The White Horse Press

The copyright holder reserves, or holds for their own use, all the rights provided by copyright law, such as distribution, performance, and creation of derivative works.

Mulwafu, Wapulumuka Oliver. Conservation Song: A History of Peasant-State Relations and the Environment in Malawi, 1860–2000. Cambridge: The White Horse Press, 2010.

Conservation Song explores ways in which colonial relations shaped meanings and conflicts over environmental control and management in Malawi. By focusing on soil conservation, which required an integrated approach to the use and management of such natural resources as land, water, and forestry, it examines the origins and effects of policies and their legacies in the post-colonial era. That interrelationship has fundamental contemporary significance and is not simply a phenomenon created in the colonial period. For instance, like other countries in the region, post-colonial Malawi has been bedevilled by increasing rates of environmental degradation due, in part, to the expansion of human and animal populations, cash crop production, drought, and consequent deforestation. These issues are as critical today as they were six or seven decades ago. In fact, they are part of a conservation song that has a long and complex history. The song of conservation was initially composed and performed in the colonial period, modified during the immediate postcolonial period and further refashioned in the post-dictatorship period to suit the evolving political climate; but the basic lyrics remain essentially the same. This book attempts to explain the evolution of the conservationist idea whilst demonstrating changes and

Books & Profiles Collection, Multimedia Library, Environment & Society Portal

Conservation Song: A History of Peasant-State Relations and the Environment in Malawi, 1860–2000

Source URL: http://www.environmentandsociety.org/node/3499

Print date: 04 December 2025 14:36:45

continuities in peasant-state relations under different political systems.

Wapulumuka Oliver Mulwafu is associate professor of environmental history and SADC-WaterNet Professorial Chair of Integrated Water Resources Management at Chancellor College, University of Malawi. He is editorially associated with the Journal of Physics and Chemistry of the Earth and the Journal of Southern African Studies. He has been a visiting research fellow at the Centre of African Studies and Wolfson College, University of Cambridge and a visiting professor in the Department of History at Michigan State University. He has been published in the Journal of Southern African Studies, Journal of Religion in Africa, Malawi Journal of Social Science, and Society of Malawi Journal.

All rights reserved. © 2011 The White Horse Press. Distributed by Turpin Distribution

Download:

PDF: https://www.environmentandsociety.org/sites/default/files/key_docs/mulawafu.pdf

Related links:

• White Horse Press books http://www.erica.demon.co.uk/books.html

Websites linked in this text:

 http://ebiz.turpin-distribution.com/products/209155-conservation-song-a-history-of-peasant-state-relations-and-t he-environment-in-malawi-1860-2000.aspx

Print date: 04 December 2025 14:36:45