Dill-Riaz, Shaheen. Eisenfresser [Ironeaters]. Hamburg: Lemme Film, 2007. HDV / 16mm, 85 min. 75 min version available from Telepool.

> Ever since his childhood, the shipbreaking yards of Chittagong in the south of Bangladesh had remained something of a mystery for director Shaheen Dill-Riaz, who was born and grew up in Dhaka. Following the Brazilian photographer Sebastião Salgado and the American journalist William Langewiesche's documentation of conditions there, Dill-Riaz began in 2001 the research that would lead to the film Eisenfresser or "Iron Eaters." The title of the film is a translation of the Bengali "lohakhor," used to refer to the shipyard workers who are employed for "starvation wages" to dismantle some of the larger waste products of the Western world.
