Train, Russell E. Politics, Pollution and Pandas: An Environmental Memoir. Washington, D.C: Island Press, 2003.

For half a century, Russell Train has played a pioneering role in developing the nation's positive environmental policies and practices, first in government and then as head of the World Wildlife Fund-US. In Politics, Pollution, and Pandas he recounts his growing interest in conservation in the 1950s, his remarkable work in the administrations of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, and his subsequent activities on behalf of conservation around the world. — From the book's front flap.
