Booth, Annie L. "Does the Spirit Move You? Environmental Spirituality." Environmental Values 8, no. 1 (1999): 89–105. doi:10.3197/096327199129341734 .

This article looks at the idea of spirituality as it is discussed within ecophilosophical circles, particularly ecofeminism, bioregionalism, and deep ecology, as a means to improve human-nature interactions. The article also examines the use each ecophilosophy makes of a popular alternative to main-stream religion, that of Native American spiritualities, and problems inherent in adapting that alternative.
