"Non-Humean Holism, Un-Humean Holism"

Lo, Y.S. "Non-Humean Holism, Un-Humean Holism." Environmental Values 10, no. 1 (2001): 113–23. doi:10.3197/096327101129340778 .

In this article I argue that textual evidence from David Hume's A Treatise of Human Nature does not support J. Baird Callicott's professedly Humean yet holistic environmental ethic, which understands the community (e.g., the biotic community) as a 'metaorganismic' entity 'over and above' its individual members. Based on Hume's reductionist account of the mind and his assimilation of the metaphysical nature of the mind to that of the community, I also argue that a Humean account of the community should be likewise reductionist. My conclusion is that Callicott's anti-reductionist holism is at least foreign to, and at worst incompatible with, Hume's philosophy.
