In this issue of Earth First! Journal Jeanne Patton gives an update on the protests against factory, held together with Greenpeace. In addition, Kimberly Dawn contributes the second part of her interview with Earth First! activist Peg Millett (part 1. in 16, no. 7), and Radcon presents ideas on how to virtually boycott the world.

> A hyper-boycott is a more effective form of the traditional boycott. Simply choose a company that needs to be boycotted. These will only need to fit one o my three easy criteria: 1) Involves currency; 2) Has a roof, wheels, window, or products; 3) Has workers. Don't get too picky about who needs the hyper-boycott because the fact is ALL businesses fuck up Gaia.
