Environment & Society Portal

Multimedia Library Collection: Periodicals

"Sacrifice"

Reinert, Hugo

Reinert, Hugo. "Sacrifice." Environmental Humanities 7, no. 1 (2016): 255-58. doi:10.1215/22011919-3616461.

Sacrifice is an ancient and powerful idea, rich with contradictions. These days it can seem ubiquitous: from the rhetorical mobilizations of one war after the other, to the ideological pressures of austerity, to the "necessary" disruptions of life in neoliberal democracies, to the urgent adjustments demanded (and ignored) for a changing climate. Everywhere you turn, it seems, some form of sacrifice is rearing its head, demanding tribute. The history of the concept runs deep, open to many readings. Here I will parse it as violence, because I think that today this is how sacrifice presents itself most forcefully as a problem. (Author's introduction)

© Hugo Reinert 2016. Environmental Humanities is available online only and is published under a Creative Commons license (CC BY-NC-ND 3.0).

Download:
PDF: https://www.environmentandsociety.org/sites/default/files/key_docs/255reinert.pdf

Related links:

- Environmental Humanities website
  http://environmentalhumanities.org/
- Environmental Humanities 7, no. 1
  https://read.dukeupress.edu/environmental-humanities/issue/7/1

Periodicals Collection, Multimedia Library, Environment & Society Portal
"Sacrifice"
Source URL: http://www.environmentandsociety.org/node/8240
Print date: 06 November 2026 06:56:24