Multimedia Library Collection: Web Resources

ClimateCultures: Creative Conversations for the Anthropocene

ClimateCultures
ClimateCultures
© ClimateCultures
Used by permission
The copyright holder reserves, or holds for their own use, all the rights provided by copyright law, such as distribution, performance, and creation of derivative works. https://rightsstatements.org/page/InC/1.0/?language=en .

ClimateCultures: Creative Conversations for the Anthropocene (website). https://climatecultures.net/

> Over three years, ClimateCultures has grown to more than 200 members — novelists, short story writers, performers, poets, playwrights, painters, composers, illustrators, photographers, filmmakers, sculptors, designers, digital artists, landscape artists, gallery owners, online curators, creative producers, cultural activists, historians, biologists, archaeologists, geographers, environmental technologists, climate researchers and more. We have members across the UK and in other parts of Europe, as well as in North America, Australia, India... You can find all of them in the ClimateCultures Directory , where they introduce themselves, their work and their interests, with links to find out more. (Text from C limateCultures)

ClimateCultures was launched in 2017 by Mark Goldthorpe and is a growing network for creative responses to the Anthropocene.

Websites linked in this text:

- https://climatecultures.net/
- https://climatecultures.net/members-directory/

- https://www.asle.org/discover-asle/vision-history/
- https://climatecultures.net/about/about-climatecultures/

Websites linked in image captions:

- https://rightsstatements.org/page/InC/1.0/?language=en

Web Resources Collection, Multimedia Library, Environment & Society Portal
ClimateCultures: Creative Conversations for the Anthropocene
Source URL: http://www.environmentandsociety.org/node/9390
Print date: 17 November 2026 17:57:08