

Multimedia Library Collection: Periodicals

"I Still Do a Lot of Good"

Wormbs, Nina

© Christian Müller on Adobe Stock. All rights reserved.

© Christian Müller on Adobe Stock. All rights reserved.

The copyright holder reserves, or holds for their own use, all the rights provided by copyright law, such as distribution, performance, and creation of derivative works.

Wormbs, Nina. "I Still Do a Lot of Good." Springs: The Rachel Carson Center Review, no. 3 (2023).

To feel better, we need to justify our behaviour to ourselves and our imagined audience. We do this through a process of internal deliberation. In the research project, we studied this experience of cognitive dissonance as it manifested itself in the open-text answers in our survey. We looked for thought structures and patterns using topos theory, first presented by Aristotle. Topoi are modes of reasoning that work in our social context and that can create meaning. (From the article)

This article was originally published in Springs: The Rachel Carson Center Review. Springs is an online publication featuring peer-reviewed articles, creative nonfiction, and artistic contributions that showcase the work of the Rachel Carson Center and its community across the world.

2023 Nina Wormbs

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License . This license refers only to the text and does not include any image rights. Please see captions in the PDF for individual licenses.

Related links:

• Springs: The Rachel Carson Center Review https://springs-rcc.org

Websites linked in this text:

• https://springs-rcc.org/