Environment & Society Portal

Multimedia Library Collection: Periodicals

"Inequalities in the Land: Colonial Legacies and the Quest for Land Equity in Zimbabwe"

Mseba, Admire

Mseba, Admire. "Inequalities in the Land: Colonial Legacies and the Quest for Land Equity in Zimbabwe." Global Environment: A Journal of Transdisciplinary History 17, no. 1 (2024): 172–81.

In Zimbabwe, and other former settler colonies, unequal rights to land are broadly attributed to colonial dispossession and racial inequality. This is for a good reason. Settler colonial states took land from indigenous peoples and distributed it to white settlers. They also corralled many indigenous peoples in poor, diseased, semi-arid and wretched places that they called native reserve. (From the article)

A collaboration between the International Consortium of Environmental History Organizations and The White Horse Press, "Notes from the Icehouse" is a series of reflections published in each issue of Global Environment: A Journal of Transdisciplinary History.

© 2024 The White Horse Press. All rights reserved.

Download:

PDF: https://www.environmentandsociety.org/sites/default/files/key_docs/mseba-2024-notes-from-the-icehouse.pdf

Related links:

- Notes from the Icehouse at ICEHO
  https://www.iceho.org/notes-from-the-icehouse
- Global Environment
  https://liverpooluniversitypress.co.uk/toc/whpge/current
- The White Horse Press
  https://www.whpress.co.uk/

Periodicals Collection, Multimedia Library, Environment & Society Portal
"Inequalities in the Land: Colonial Legacies and the Quest for Land Equity in Zimbabwe"
Source URL: http://www.environmentandsociety.org/node/9826
Print date: 17 November 2026 03:03:39